

Lisa Ramirez Shah, PhD, completed her postdoctoral fellowship at MetroHealth Medical Center and officially joined the faculty as an Assistant Professor in 2013. She currently serves as the Associate Director of Training for Metro's Pediatric Psychology Predoctoral Internship Program and is the Director of Behavioral and Community Health for Metro's School Health Program, which provides primary care services to Cleveland students on several CMSD campuses.

Dr. Ramirez Shah's background includes hospital- and community-based mental health service delivery to ethnically diverse, urban populations in both English and Spanish. She is devoted to program development and training faculty, residents, and medical and graduate students on how to work effectively in teams to best meet the needs of our patients. She has received various teaching and service awards, is actively involved in various organizations, committees, and advisory boards serving the neighborhoods around MetroHealth.
